

2022 National Young Scholars in General Internal Medicine Scholarship

Deadline to Apply:
February 18, 2022 at 12pm Eastern Time

What is it?

The 2022 National Young Scholars in GIM Scholarship is a program for residents and medical students that provides scholarships to support the registration fee to the 2022 SGIM Annual Meeting. Up to 50 scholarships are available this year. Learn more about the 2022 annual meeting at <https://connect.sgim.org/annualmeeting/home>.

Who should apply?

Any medical student, intern or resident who is interested in attending the SGIM Annual meeting. This scholarship is designed to bring interested trainees to the meeting. It is not necessary to be presenting at the meeting to apply, but an active SGIM membership is required. All interested students and residents are encouraged to join SGIM and apply today! Learn more about membership on www.sgim.org/membership/join-sgim.

Why should I apply?

The 2022 National Young Scholars in GIM Scholarship is designed to give students, interns and residents the opportunity to attend the SGIM annual meeting and allow them to fully experience all that SGIM has to offer. The SGIM annual meeting is a major hub of research, clinical and educational material that anyone with an interest in GIM will find to be high quality, broadly applicable, and expertly presented. The annual meeting has a wide-ranging agenda and additional meeting information can be found on <https://connect.sgim.org/annualmeeting/home>.

How do I apply?

To be considered, applicants must provide (PDF documents preferred):

1. Two brief statements (in one combined document):

a.) A brief statement (200 words or less) that describes your interest in general internal medicine as well as your career goals.

b.) A brief statement (200 words or less) that describes your interest in and plans for the 2022 SGIM Annual Meeting. This may include presentations you are giving, sessions covering your areas of interest, networking, etc.) You may wish to the preliminary session listing:

<https://connect.sgim.org/annualmeeting/program/preliminary> and identify those sessions or events you are most interested in attending in your statement.

To submit your application, login to your member account at <http://www.sgim.org/home/members-login>.

- Under the "Awards & Nominations" tab select "View Open Competitions"
- Click on "2022 National Young Scholars in GIM Scholarship" then "Enter Now"
- Upload the required documents and click "Next" at the bottom of the screen.
- Verify your uploaded documents and click "Submit"

Applications must be submitted by February 18, 2022 by 12pm eastern time to be considered.

All applicants will be notified prior to the early registration deadline.

Please contact Muna Futur, SGIM Director of Member Relations, at futurm@sgim.org with any questions